Introduction

Since emerging from the Great Recession, the Legislature has made responsible budgeting the top priority.

Gone are the bad old days of budget gridlock year after year, that held the state hostage for months on end, well into the new fiscal year, until the budget would pass. And often the final agreement included middle of the night deals that only furthered the state's fiscal woes.

During the era of fiscal responsibility, instead of bouncing from fiscal crisis to fiscal crisis, the Legislature showed restraint and learned to allocate one-time revenues for one-time purposes and to grow historic reserves – something the state completely avoided the prior three decades.

In the aftermath of COVID, new uncertainty came to the state's finances. Managing the impacts of that uncertainty the over past two annual budgets has been challenging and has required the drawdown of some of the historic reserves the Legislature built.

Through the work of the Legislature and the Governor the past two years, the budget was once again stabilized, with the Governor's January 10 proposed budget being balanced without needing new solutions.

Unfortunately, since January, circumstances have changed, and California now faces a significant budget shortfall. The shortfall is driven by three key factors:

- First and foremost, the policies of the new federal Administration – in particular the tariff increase policies – have caused economic forecasts throughout the world to be significantly downgraded.

The federal policies have greatly impacted California's economic forecast as well, with the May Revision projecting slower growth and the Newsom Administration indicating that absent federal economic policy changes, state General Fund revenues would be $16 billion higher. The state budget condition may be further adjusted downward based on additional adverse federal policies in the coming months.

- Second, to a modest degree, the baseline costs of key programs – particularly Medi-Cal – have grown faster than projected.
- And third, to a smaller degree, the devastating LA fires have had a negative economic impact and resulted in increased state spending.

As a result, the 2025-26 state budget requires challenging budget solutions to bring the budget back into balance and to get back on the path toward stability.

The Governor's proposed May Revision provided a first draft for addressing the 2025-26 budget shortfall, with a mix of reductions, borrowing, and other solutions. The Legislature crafted the second draft of the budget and passed SB 101 on June 13th. And now the Legislature and Governor are in agreement on a final Budget Act of 2025.

All told, the Budget Act of 2025 contains $321.1 billion in total spending, including $228.4 from the General Fund. The budget is balanced with a total of $1X in total solutions, and contains total reserves of $15.7 billion, including $11.2 billion in the Rainy Day Fund and $4.5 in the regular reserve.
